So at Least the Detectives Say-She Says They Were Really Married, and If Ho He Added Bigamy to His Other Offences.

"Billy" Dunham's murder is still as much of mystery as it was at midnight on Wednesday, a few minutes after the assassin speaked up to the kitchen window of Dunham's hotel in Washington avenue, Belleville, and fired a shot into the back of his head through the glass. The theories advanced by the Belleville people are merely idle specuintion and many of them are relterations of stories which have been sifted and dropped by the County Prosecutor and his detectives. It is evident in Belleville, as well as in Newark. that no public sympathy is being wasted on Impham, and stories are told about him which the recounters would not dare to breathe if Punham could hear them. It is generally agreed, however, that he was far from saintly. selleville would rejoice if sure that the road house would no longer be run in the manner it has been since Dunham opened it. It has been the scene of frequent drunken brawls and vile orgies, it is said, and has menaced the fair name of the staid old village on the bank of the Passaic, a place which until a few rears ago was known as "the finished town of

A Dissipated Barber Seats Out His Wife's Brains With a Finitron.

LOWRILL, Dec. 25.-A horrible murder was committed in Aldrich's block, 124 Appleton street, between 11 and 12 o'clock last night. The murderer is Frank L. Moulton, a dissi-pated barber, who beat out the brains of his wife, Alma R. Moulton, with a flatiron. He seems to have been sober at the time of committing the crime. He worked for Joseph Laber, a Centralville barber, until 10:30 last night. Laber paid him some money and, fearing that Moulton would spend the money for drink, went home with him, leaving Moulton at the steps of his house at 10:45. The crime was committed soon afterward. Moulton consame house, and said he was going to give himself up. and Coughlin reported to the pelice. Moulton wandered about the rest of the morning, drinking over a pint of whiskey in the meantime. At about 50 clock this morning he was arrested in a hotel and locked up. shoulton was married to Aima R. Skay April 33. 1889, and they have lived a quarrelsome life ever since, having quarrelied frequently before marriage. In their quarrels she sometimes got the better of him. As Moulton tells the story, this quarrel began in bed, because his wife would not give him room enough. She siapped as face, and he tried to choke her. They then a fose, partially dressed, and went at it again. He got a flatiron, and after asking her if she would give up, to which she said no, he says: "I et her have the flatiron three times as hard as I could hit. The first blow felled her, and then her face and head were pounded out of shape. Moulton says: "I did the job, and it's ad-d good one. She will never talk to me again about New Hampshire."

Moulton is about 350 years of age, rather good-looking, and his wife was a few years younger. Moulton was sentenced about six mouths ago for larceny and assault, and last Monday night was in the police station for drunkenness. fessed it to James Coughlin, who lives in the Fighting Blood in a Embbit.

Fighting Blood is a Rabbli,

From the Martined Commit.

Southington, Dec. 24.—The carbot day a hunter was out around Roaring Brook seeking something to stew, and the dogs soon started a rabbit, which at first soud away in the customary manner, but soon surprised him by facing about under an immense rock beside the fails and showing fight. The rabbit squared off like a bear cub and gave the dog a culf which so surprised the canine that with a howl of terror he jumped into the brook, only to be carried over the falls and drowned.

Then the heroic rabbit turned his attention to the hunter and sailed into him like an instant cyclone, bitting, scratching, and boxing in an unpleasant manner. The hunter floatly vannished the athlickic bunny, but not until he was considerably bruised and tatigned although he is a muscular man. On examining this freak he found that it had ovidently been betten by some dog, and his theory is that the bear of the dog served to inculate the rabbit with a virus of strength and ferocity, and testarrily grafted a canine spirit into it.

WOLF POND'S HERMIT'S GOLD. Twenty-Bollar Coin and the Murder of

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., Dec. 25 .- A strange ineldent connects old Seth Brazington, the Her-mit of Wolf Pond, who recently died, with the murder of Mrs. Amelia Gregory. Wolf Pond is a lonely and picturesque little lake up among the rocky and barren ledges of the Shawangunk mountain range in the town of Thomson, Suffivan county. When the Delaware and Hudson Canal was made the canal company extended a dam across the outlet of the pond, and used the surplus waters thus accumulated as a dry-sesson reservoir for the canal. Soth Brazington had charge of the dam and water flow for nearly fifty years, during which period he lived in almost com-plete isolation and solltude in a little oneroom cabin at the outlet of the pond. He got a small monthly stipend from the company for his charge, and occasionally received perquisites for boats and balt and other conveniences furnished to enterprising fishermen who climbed up to his lonely lake. In his younger years Seth Brazington had twice been married, and in each case speedily proved a failure. When his second wife deserted him and ran off with a better looking young fellow, Seth withdrew from society to his lonely mountain cabin and became a woman-hater and a miser, and in course of time grew to be noted throughout the region under the appellation of the Hermit of Wolf an undertaker since his disastrous adventures as a boodle Alderman. George W. Knight. who lives in the same house, sat beside Ogden. Just what passed between the two men no one seems to know, but they jumped up and clinched. The guests made a rush for the combatants to separate them, and many blows were dealt. Chairs were overturned and the noise of the conflict reached the street.

Meantime Ogden had attended strictly to business. He drew a clothing cutter's knife from his pocket and loosened knight's grip on him by slashing his left hand. The knife is a flat strip of steel a foot long and about an inch broad. The long tapering point is thin and as keen as persistent sharpening can make it with it Ogden nearly severed knight's hand at the wrist, and bringing the knife down through the palm he infleted a wound which is expected to cause Knight to lose his hand. Knight flad from the house leaving a trail of blood down the staircase. He met Foliceman Moore, who had him removed to the Presbyterian Hospital. Ogden was arrested and yesterday was held in the Harlem Court.

Agent Barkley of Mr. Gerry's society took charge of the children. The mother was found in bed and was left there. Agent Barkley says she was drunk, and has been arrested several times for drunkenness. The children were sent to St. Joseph's Home.

The burial certificate was found in Ogden's pocket, and ex-Alderman Duffy buried the baby yesterday. as a boodle Alderman. George W. Knight. who

When detectives went to Mrs. Thee's house last evening they found her dangerously ill. A doctor's certificate certified to the fact that it would be dangerous to remove her to Williamsburgh. Coroner Lindsay said last night he would consult District Attorney lidgway of Brooklyn to-day and learn what his powers in the premises are. Should he have jurisdiction in the matter he will have Mrs. Thee guarded by Brooklyn policemen, and as soon as she is able to be moved she will be taken to Brooklyn.

WANTED MONEY OR A KISS. A Repulsive Crank Arrested in Elizabeth by a Messenger Boy.

ELIZABETH, Dec. 25.—Thomas J. Cashman, a district messenger boy, saw a man chasing some women in West Jersey street here tonight. He caught hold of him and yelled for a policeman. The stranger tried to shake off the boy, but could not, as the latter is hardy and athletic. Policeman Martin looked the man up. He said he was George Wilson, aged 24, and that he lived in Belleville. He had intercepted and insulted half a dozen women during the evening, it is said, and threatened to take the life of one if she did not give him some money, or a kisa. The police think he is "the Chaser." who has been following women after nightfall for some weeks.

It was not supposed, however, that he had accumulated the fortune of which it has been found that he died possessed. He left no will, and no one knows whether he had any relatives living. His setate, so far as evidences thus far found establish, will amount to nearly $40,000. Several years ago a man named Cunningham came from Ireland to this city and claimed to be Michael's brother, but Michael positively declared that he was not his brother, and that he did not know him. The stranger left Emira and went to Pennsylvania, and was working in the coal mines when last heard from.

A Norwalk Builder Missing.

A few days ago, on the pretence of collecting money to pay the men, he got in about $1,000 from various parties then disappeared. No trace of him has been then disappeared. No trace of him has been found, although there is a rumor that he has gone to the Pacific coast. He left a note informing his wife that he was going away, but, that he would soon write to her. Mr. Hodges is left in a very embarrassing position, and the result of his partner's flight cannot yet be determined. Lumber dealers have placed attachments on most of the buildings in process of construction, and the other husiness men have selzed a lot of elegant furniture that ornaments Brown's home on Main street and which has never been paid for.
